

PROFILE

Agustín Fuentes, trained in Zoology and Anthropology, is the Edmund P. Joyce C.S.C. Professor of Anthropology at the University of Notre Dame. His research delves into the how and why of being human. Ranging from chasing monkeys in jungles and cities, to exploring the lives of our evolutionary ancestors, to examining what people actually do across the globe, Professor Fuentes is interested in both the big questions and the small details of what makes humans and our closest relatives tick. Fuentes is an active public scientist, a well-known blogger and lecturer, and a writer and explorer for National Geographic. He has published more than 150 peer reviewed articles and chapters, authored or edited 19 books and a three-volume encyclopedia, and conducted research across four continents and two-million years of human history. His current explorations include the roles of creativity and imagination in human evolution, multispecies anthropology, evolutionary theory, and the structures of race and racism.

TICKETS

Open to the public without reservation as space allows; a free will offering is requested to continue future programs of interest to the Indianapolis community. Child care is available. A complimentary reception will follow the address.

ST THOMAS AQUINAS CHURCH
Community Conversations presents

Dr Agustin Fuentes

for A University of Notre Dame Hesburgh Lecture on

“What Race is and What it is Not”

As part of the St. Thomas Aquinas theme of the year, “That all may be one; Racial Justice through Reconciliation,” Dr Agustin Fuentes will present a Hesburgh lecture on behalf of the University of Notre Dame and the INDY Notre Dame Club. His topic, “What Race is and What it is Not” is particularly relevant today. Dr. Fuentes speaks throughout the world, on social media, TED talks and as a favored professor at the University of Notre Dame.

Wednesday, November 13
7 PM

St Thomas Aquinas Church

46th St and Illinois St,
Indianapolis